
Abstract

62 Novel human MOAT genes and their encoded proteins are provided herein. The MRP-related ABC transporters encoded by the disclosed nucleic acid sequences play a pivotal role in the efflux of pharmacologically beneficial reagents from tumor cells. MOAT genes and their encoded protein provide valuable therapeutic targets for the design of anti-cancer agents which inhibit the aberrant growth of malignant cells.
